Brunschwig & Fils

The new Spring 2009 collection was introduced by Susan Cabay last month. For those who were unable to attend the showings, please stop into the showroom to see the new line. Highlights of the beautiful new collection are shown here. Having done what they do best, Brunschwig & Fils has given existing patterns new life, as well as introducing exciting new designs. The prints are a collection of brilliantly colored timeless classics. The wovens show the advances in technology by creating beautiful and durable embossing, multi-textured stripes, and cozy chenilles.

One of the best ways to lend presence to a dining room is the placement of host and hostess chairs at each end of the table, or on either side of a breakfront or sideboard. The advantages of two larger, upholstered chairs can be the addition of another important fabric to the room, which can enhance the overall scale and color. The scale of the chairs themselves is very important as proper clearance is needed for arm chairs under a table. Create a unique and special room with the host and hostess chairs shown here or contact Designers Only for assistance in finding other selections.

Rich textures and colours abound in Maitland's collection of upholstery weaves, including velvet, chenille, raffia, and more.

The Adelphi collection of silks is a beautiful group of stripes, jacquard weaves, and embroidered fabrics in a delicate colour palette.

Named for places in New York, the Manhattan collection is a vivacious group of contemporary patterns in stunning colours.

New Ralph Lauren Prints

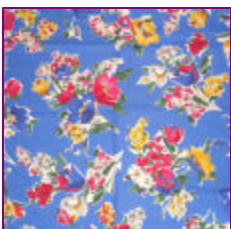

This spring Ralph Lauren is introducing three new prints that are all created in entirely different and interesting ways. From printing by hand to printing by computer each one is unique in form. Please ask to see these works of art now available at Designers Only.

Ladies Day Floral Print is printed using the ancient technique of wood block printing. Sixty year old sycamore wood blocks were used to create this pattern. A total of 13 blocks are used to apply the pattern to the ground by hand. Due to this special technique there may be small variations throughout the fabric. This is a labor intensive work of art keeping alive the oldest of printing techniques.

Abbey House Floral Print is a re-creation of an antique paper document. Special emphasis was placed on retaining all the documentary details and nuances. The onyx color way is the original document color. This pattern is made using 16 flat bed screens to capture the documentary details. The fabric is printed at a fifth generation family run mill in Laval, France which is operated completely by female workers.

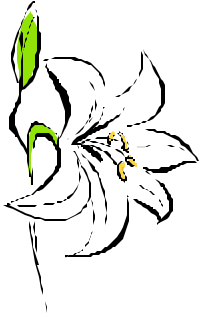

Regent Park Floral Print is transformed from a Ralph Lauren spring 2008 runway show. Originally a silk chiffon ruffled dress, Ralph Lauren wanted to add the pattern to the home line as a linen print available in three colors. The glamour remains in the original design details of the placement of the flowers, flowing in all directions. The fabric is printed using a new age jet printing technique that is produced by computer.
